Compass Diversified Trust
Subsidiary, Anodyne Medical Device, Inc.,
Announces Acquisition

September 18, 2006 — Compass Diversified Trust (Nasdaq NMS: CODI) and Compass Group Diversified Holdings LLC (collectively, “Compass”) announced today that their subsidiary, Anodyne Medical Device, Inc. (“AMD”), has executed a definitive purchase agreement for the acquisition of Anatomic Concepts, Inc. (“Anatomic Concepts”) from Anatomic Global, Inc. It is anticipated the transaction will close on or before September 30, 2006.

This transaction will add Anatomic Concepts to AMD’s family of medical support surfaces companies, which currently includes AMF Support Surfaces, Inc. and SenTech Medical Systems, Inc. AMD is the nation’s leading designer and manufacturer of specialty support surfaces and patient positioning devices and the only manufacturer of medical support surfaces with manufacturing facilities located on both U.S. coasts, to better serve its national customer base.

Anatomic Concepts, headquartered in Corona, California, designs, manufactures and distributes medical support surfaces and medical patient positioning devices, including mattresses, mattress overlays, mattress replacements, operating room patient positioning devices, operating room table pads and related accessories.

Commenting on the transaction, I. Joseph Massoud, CEO of Compass Group Diversified Holdings LLC, said: “We are pleased to announce this add-on acquisition for AMD. We are particularly excited about the manufacturing efficiencies and product line extensions Anatomic Concepts brings to our existing platform.”
